

Coresource AB

Coresource help companies reach sustainability governance, starting with keeping product content in check.

We provide services for changing and executing processes and tools in our customers' product flow. Our most important role is to make sure our customers have full control of their product information in all stages of their products' life cycles. This is a challenge for all companies, but necessary if you truly want to govern your product towards sustainability objectives. As market demand and legislation regarding the capability to declare sustainability information for a specific product increase, the challenges grow. To reduce the effort of keeping product sustainability information in check, Coresource has started an Open Source project for a material declaration tool - InCheck (www.incheck.eu). The tool will assist smaller companies with product information logistics and guide them towards compliance for legislations such as RoHS and REACH.
